Rothrock then appeared again in the street, with a double-barreled shot gun and demanded that the negro should take his (Rothrock's) coat off, the negro not obeying Rothrock shot him. They were about thirty or forty feet apart. The gun was loaded with buckshot, twelve of which took effect in and about the chest; one, from its direction, must have penetrated the heart, for the negro fell and died without a struggle. There will be an inquest held over the body this morning, which will result in a verdict of "Desth from a gun shot, fired from the hands of Wallace H. Rothrock." Rothrock, sfter the shooting, quietly walked off into the PERSONAL.

REEVES' SURRENDER.

The young man Nat Reeves, who found necessarry to shoot a colored man last anday morning out on Rayburn avenue, Sanday morning out on Rayburn svenue, gave himself up yesterday. In the morning he sent word in to Col. DuBose, that he was ready for surrender. Chief O'Donnell, of the police force, in company with one of his men, went out toward the southern edge of the city, and got Nat at the place he indicated in his letter of alvies to Col. DuBose, Nat had a cool seat in the yard of the Adams at rest station-house for two or three hours yesterday before he was investigated by Souire day before he was investigated by Squ Miller. Nat says he shot solely in a defense. He said the slain Dick, it colored, had threatened his life seve times, and on Sunday morning, wh Nat was walking on the parapet of an old fort in that neighborhood for the benefit of his health, he heard Dick "cursing and ripping round," and saying he would "like to have a chance at that," etc., meaning Nat. Thereupon an altercation took place, which resulted in the death of the colored. It appears that Dielection colored. It appears that Dick clinched with Nat before he died, and they had a sharp struggle. Besides this, several negroes came up, one of whom struck him with a brickbat. Seeing that his own life was in danger, he left there as quickly as might be.
